Tony Tartaglia The Art of Aikido

You know martial artists (Can that be the right word? he did have a ponytail!) are rather like preachers in the US. Everybody seems to set up their own sect.

Thus Tony carefully explained to us the lineage of his particular sect which is Japanese in origin, based on sword-fighting, though they don't use a sword, and is represented in the whole world only in Soi 11 (Tony's Dojo) and Jakarta.

I think. It was a bit complicated.

Anyway, it's definitely of the "throw them around" style Judo / Fujitsu or whatever, rather than the Jacky Chan Kung-fu or Karate style. And throw them around he did!

Toni brought along two acolytes, Patrick from the US and Daniel from Switzerland.

All three came dressed in their pajamas though it was, you will remember, lunchtime.

Patrick and Daniel showed Tony due reverence, called him "Master" and he, in return, rolled them over, slammed them down and broke Daniel's glasses.

None of them however followed my suggestion to twirl Bill Fantozzi around his head, or even knock him over. Out of consideration, I assume.

It seems that the secret is to put a lock on one of the opponent's joints and then, pivoting his motion round your center of gravity, lead him where you want; or even suggest nicely that he may want to do a forward roll and lay under your foot.

Patrick and Daniel were sitting at my table as nobody wanted to sit with them either. I pointed out that they did not seem to make any effort to avoid rolling over and they agreed. Tony is not Italian in origin for nothing. The proposition is, you either roll over and lay down nicely as he suggests, or the joint which he has just locked will be broken by your own weight.

But no pressure...do as you like!

After all, as Tony explained, it's not competitive and nobody (needs to) get hurt.

All our Martial Artists came out of their cupboards with questions and suggestions. The neatest question was whether Tony had ever considered going into Marriage Counseling.

It was mildly worrying to see how many came out.

Of course, we knew about Ron the Pocket Hercules, and Bill the full-size version, but when P Michael said he learnt similar stuff as an MP and even mild Morgan turned out to be a brown belt most started looking nervously at their neighbors. But not !!

My neighbor was Patrick and I had already seen what a pushover he was.
